

AGOA eligible products

AGOA provides duty-free market access to the United States for qualifying products produced in designated Sub-Saharan African beneficiary countries. It does this by extending duty-free preferences previously available under the US Generalized System of Preferences (GSP), while also adding many additional tariff lines that were not previously GSP-eligible. Virtually all GSP tariff lines have therefore also received the 'D' classification, which in the US tariff code denotes AGOA eligibility (i.e. duty-free preferences).

In addition, AGOA also provides duty-free access to textiles and apparel subject to the wearing apparel provisions, having their own requirements and associated rules of origin. Textiles (of chapter 50-60 and 63) are AGOA eligible only when produced and exported by a 'lesser developed' AGOA beneficiary country. Wearing apparel (of chapters 61,62) is granted duty-free status within a number of different rules of origin categories, each with their own special classification. It is therefore important to note that while Chapters 50-63 (with few exceptions) are not denoted 'D' in the general classification database, any AGOA trade takes place under the special classification sub-headings 9819.xx (please use the third drop-down column menu below to filter Ch 98 textiles and apparel categories for AGOA purposes).

The database list below is searchable by HTS tariff code, tariff line description, AGOA status, GSP status, and US import tariff (MFN and non-MFN). The MFN tariff applies to US imports from WTO member States (i.e. not claiming AGOA preferences, as applicable) and the non-MFN tariff applies to non-WTO member States (when not claiming AGOA preferences where relevant).

Please see the link for more products that are supported by AGOA <https://agoa.info/about-agoa/products.html?resetfilters=0&clearordering=0&clearfilters=0>

How does an exported product qualify for AGOA duty-free treatment?

1. It must be included in the list of GSP-eligible articles (without exclusions), or included in the list of new AGOA products, or be a qualifying apparel or textile item;
2. It must be imported into the United States directly from the AGOA beneficiary country or pass through another country in a sealed container and addressed to a location in the United States;
3. The article must be the growth, product, or manufacture of the AGOA beneficiary country by fulfilling the relevant Rules of Origin requirements for general or apparel items respectively (see next points)
4. If foreign materials are imported into the AGOA country first, to be used in the production of an AGOA-eligible product, the sum of the cost of the materials produced in the AGOA beneficiary country, plus the costs of processing, must equal at least 35 percent of the product's value when the product is sold for export into the United States;
5. In the case of clothing/apparel, the 35% rule does not apply directly, instead, the goods need to comply with the respective Rules of Origin requirements;
6. The US importer must request duty-free treatment under AGOA on the relevant customs entry form (Form 7501) by placing an "D" in column 27 in front of the US tariff number that identifies the imported article.
